

Maria Valdez By Katelyn Wyandt

Maria is a high school foreign exchange student from Colombia, South America. She loves fashion, adventure, and meeting new people.

Maria loves meeting all of the new people at school, but she has trouble remembering who all she has met. She downloaded "The Webb", a new social media sharing app to help her make new connections.

Maria is able to link all of her social medias to the app in just 3 minutes!

The next day at school, Anna meets a new girl in her math class. She seems pretty nice, but she doesn't know how to start a conversation.

She asks the girl, Anna, if she has The Webb. She does! They both pull up the app and are able to share their Instagrams, and the app automatically adds them to their contacts! Anna doesn't like to share her snapchat with new people, so she opts to not share her snapchat. That's completely okay!

Anna invites Maria to lunch, and Maria is able to make even more friends! They all have The Webb, so Maria is able to make more friends and they make plans to hang out that night. Yay!

Bryce Christian

Chris and his wife just moved into their home with just having both completed medical school. They are ready to start their new phase of life together and experience a fresh start. Both know no one in their new town they hope to call home.

Chris starts his first day as a neuroscience doctor at the Regional Medical Center in Salem, Ohio. He is excited to start helping people and take what he learned to use.

He is set up in his office excited to start the day having all his charts set up and each patient scheduled. He is now officially Dr. Terry. But this first day isn't as easy as he thought it was going to be.

Despite his first week success Chris can't help but feel as though moving having known no one is difficult. He feels alone in his work and doesn't know what to do. He feels lost in the city.

However one day Chris notices an add on his phone for an app called the Webb. Now there is a way to connect with his coworkers easier on the go. All he needs to do is go in close proximity to his coworkers with the app and connect to their accounts with their social information.

Chris now knows all his coworkers thanks to the Webb app that allowed him to connect with his coworkers easily. He follows each of them on Facebook and Instagram. He is excited to invite them over for Sunday Football.

Jackie is a full time student studying Public Health. As a freshman in college, she is trying to get involved in many activities on campus. Currently her goals include growing her social circle, getting an internship at the local hospital, and networking with people in her field.

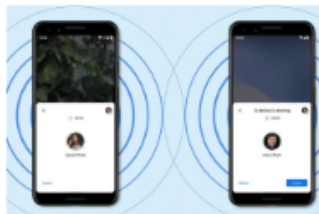

Her daily life begins to fill up with the many people she is meeting on campus and she struggles to collect everyone's contact information.

One day Jackie gets an ad on her phone about an app called Webb, that allows the user to enter all their contact information and share it by clicking one button to another person in close proximity.

She downloads the app and enters her information she wishes to efficiently share with other people such as her number, email, social media(s), and linkedin.

She shares this new app she found to her friends, family, and professors. As more people begin to download the app on campus, it becomes as easy as a fast tap to share everyone's informations safely and quickly.

Jackie can now easily keep track of everyone she has shared her information with and also doesn't need to stress about getting the contact information for the many people she meets on campus!
